

IMMIGRANTS FACE CUT TO AID WORKERS

Determined Fight To Curtail Immigration Until Condi- tions Improve Is On.

BY WILLIAM S. NEAL.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—A determined fight for suspension of immigration until unemployment conditions are remedied throughout the country will be made during the closing days of the present session, Rep. Albert Johnson (R) of Washington, chairman of the House immigration committee, said today.

Encouraged by pledges of support after he first broached the subject to the House, Johnson indicated he has a surprise move in prospect which will force a House vote on the proposition.

MOVE DEMANDED

Johnson declared his belief that President Hoover would approve the movement and asserted he has received demands from all parts of the country for an immigration moratorium.

"Why should we be admitting people from any country to jobs here in this time of unemployment?" he asked. "I think the President will be with us. The Senate will not delay on that."

"No American citizen can go to Mexico, or to Canada, or to England, or to France, or any other country that I know anything about and take a job away from a native in any one of those countries. This is so by law."

The unemployment situation also will be brought forward by the immigration committee in making a campaign for passage of the Harris bill, placing Mexican immigration on a quota of about 1,900 a year.

Mexican immigration has run from 12,000 to 20,000 a year since 1925.

The Harris bill, which passed the Senate, was formally reported to the House today by the immigration committee. Requests also were placed before the rules committee to add the bill to the House program.

The Japanese immigration question was opened again when Johnson announced that "in due time" he will offer an amendment to the 1924 act giving Japan her proportionate quota of immigrants under the 1924 act.

GREAT RESENTMENT

The proposal was advanced by Johnson to quiet resentment which has smoldered in Japan since Congress voted exclusion.

While the amendment would not materially affect Japanese immigration—the quota under the national origins law being figured at about 180 a year—it would remove charges of discrimination, Johnson declared.

At the present time Japan, and every other country, has a minimum quota of 100, but immigration is restricted because only people of the white and black races, eligible to citizenship, may be admitted.

AKRONITE TO DIE MONDAY

Don't Expect Board of Clemency To Recommend Cooper to Interfere.

COLUMBUS, O., May 24.—It was indicated today that the state board of clemency will not recommend that Governor Myers V. Cooper interfere with plans for electrocution of John Richardson, Akron, at Ohio penitentiary Monday night. Richardson was convicted of murdering Steve Pierson, a waiter, during a holdup at a roadhouse near Akron.

Officials at the governor's office indicated that Governor Cooper will not halt the scheduled electrocution. If carried out, it will be the first electrocution since the penitentiary fire which occurred on the night of April 21.

Richardson was to have been electrocuted on April 25 but the governor granted a stay of execution because of the condition prevailing in the state prison following the holocaust.

YOUNGSTER WINS SCHOOL HONORS

Sol D. Riegel, Jr., the small son of Mrs. Alice L. Riegel, was awarded the first honor in the intelligence test conducted at Franklin-st. School this week. The young man had an average of 99.7 per cent. The second honor went to Rose Ann Griner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Griner, of E. Main-st. Her average was 99.6 per cent.

Habit of Joking Endears Young Business Man to Hearts of Friends. Robert L. Brehmer Civic Leader

Another of a Series of Intimate Life Stories of Circleville Citizens.

Robert L. Brehmer, Ford agent of Circleville, is a product of Adelphi. He was born on the banks of the Saltcreek, just across the border of Pickaway-co. Three years he spent at the place of his birth, then he came to Circleville in 1884 with his mother and father.

So it is with the exception of the first three years, he has spent his entire life in Circleville where he has devoted much of his time, and really hard work to the improvement of the town. Progressive and civic-minded, many of the town's newest projects can be traced to Mr. Brehmer as a steadfast supporter.

Everyone knows Bob Brehmer, and has known him since he was a long-legged boy tramping back and forth to school. His habit of joking interspersed with energetic work, began in those days when he was a student at Everts high school, from where he graduated in 1902. Several of his schoolmates in those days are still endeavoring to repay him for some of the jokes he played on them.

IS YOUNG MAN

Mr. Brehmer is one of the young business men of the town. He stands for progression in every respect, which he has shown in numerous transactions and city improvements. He is past president of both the Rotary club and the Chamber of Commerce.

For years, since these organizations were founded in Circleville he has been one of their active members. During his presidency in the Chamber of Commerce, he headed a membership drive and succeeded remarkably well.

A number of years ago, before most people scarcely had thought of such a thing, Mr. Brehmer was writing the name Circleville on the roof of his garage, as a guide for passing aviators. That was in the beginning of his interest displayed in aeronautics. At the present, he is sponsor of the Circleville chapter of the Airplane Model League of America, an ultra modern airplane society, which is limited to a membership of ten boys over the age of ten years.

INTERESTED IN AIR

This club, while interesting, also involves a great deal of time, and knowledge of correct aeronautics, and much careful study and research. It is a job to be undertaken by a man with energy and genuine interest in aviation.

Mr. Brehmer is also a charter member of the Circleville Chapter of the National Aeronautical Association.

This airplane business is his real hobby, especially the model airplane club, which puts him in a place with many great men who have the courage to look far ahead into the airplane era.

Two years after Mr. Brehmer graduated from Everts high school and a very high collar in the year 1902 he had the job of driver for the Adams Express Co. His enthusiasm for airplanes may be a throwback to the days when he drove the fat express horse up and down the streets, and hoped and prayed for a day when travel wouldn't be so slow. Now his prayers are answered and he is flying around.

After his connection with the express company he was hired by the Citizens Telephone Co., and was one of those who installed the first switchboard in the telephone room located on the third floor over Grand-Girard's drug store. He was later employed as lineman, trouble shooter, and on the rural line construction gang.

He was finally made manager of the Central Union Telephone Co., whose offices were in the Pythian Castle.

His next step higher up, was as business partner with J. R. Noecker in the Ford business, where the Mader and Ebert funeral home is now located. This business association came in 1915.

Another evidence of Brehmer's constant looking to the good of his home town, has been his faithful work with the Circleville Athletic club. He was a member of the club, and treasurer, and issued the check for the purchase of their present building.

Brehmer is an ardent worker in the Trinity Lutheran church and a member of the Lutheran Brotherhood. He never has been too busy to add his stage talents to the social festivities given by that organization. His jokes and songs, sung perhaps several years ago, are still the topic of conversation when the club gets together. The club wouldn't be the same without him. He is also a member of the Elks.

The latest service Mr. Brehmer has given to his town of Circleville (Continued on Page Three)

BRITISH GIRL ENDS FLIGHT TO AUSTRALIA

Populace of Port Darwin Royally Greet Amy Johnson —Flight Perilous.

PORT DARWIN, Australia, May 24.—Amy Johnson, radiant spirit of the modern girl, slid into the air field here today in a light sport plane and combed her hair.

In back of her was the whole-hearted adulation of the British Empire. But it wasn't important.

11,000 MILE FLIGHT

The 22-year-old aviatrix had spanned 11,000 miles of the hardest flying territory there is in temperate or tropic belts.

"I'm so happy," she said. The last hop (a span of 500 miles from Timor Island to Australia) was excellent and I enjoyed it all the way."

Miss Johnson was a perfect example of what Australia likes—non-chalance—as soon as she cut the switch, Amy lifted herself over the cockpit.

Port Darwin, nearly everyone that lives there was on hand, was prepared to help a weary girl to her well-earned rest.

A radiant figure hopped to the ground. She took off her hat, and out came the pocket comb.

Then the crowd arrived. The "three cheers and a tiger" couldn't get started—everyone kept on shouting.

Carried on the shoulders of a multitude, Amy Johnson was taken to a royal reception.

The mixed population of Port Darwin became a single unit in tribute to a youngster who had taken the "long trek"—and by air. They found it hard to believe, but they knew it was true.

Even a newer country than the United States, the land "Down Under,"—hard-boiled as it is—recognized the utter daring and accomplishment of the young English girl.

She was made a guest of the government. The North Australian government paid her the tribute of making her a government house guest.

Ringgold Church Will Celebrate Its 90th Birthday

The East Ringgold Lutheran congregation, one of the oldest churches in this locality, will hold special services in commemoration of its longevity and prospects of continued existence Sunday, both morning and afternoon.

The morning service will be at 10:30 a. m. Dr. G. J. Troutman will deliver the sermon appropriate to the occasion. Rev. Edward Schramm (editor of the Lutheran Standard) conducting the altar service.

The afternoon service will be at 3 p. m. at which time Rev. Edward W. Schramm will deliver the sermon and Rev. Wm. F. Wolf, former pastor conducting the liturgy.

A short history of the congregation so far as can be obtained will be given by one of the oldest members, Edson Stout, secretary of the congregation.

There will be many interesting features, both musical and oratorical in both sessions.

The afternoon service will be held on the church lawn if weather will permit, to accommodate the crowd.

Famous flyers, including Red Jackson, co-holder of the world's record continuous flight, will be present. Everything known to flying and many things unknown will be attempted by the galaxy of air demons.

GRAF SAILS TO JANIERO

Dr. Eckener Expects Trip From Pernambuco to Take About 18 Hours.

RIO DE JANIERO, May 24.—The Graf Zeppelin passed over an outlying section of Macio, Brazil, at 12:25 a. m. (12:25 a. m. E. D. T.) today according to reports received here.

The big airship is bound here from Pernambuco where she took off at 11:37 p. m. (10:37 p. m. E. D. T.) last night. Dr. Eckener, commander of the Graf, had previously estimated his flying time between Pernambuco and Rio at 18 hours.

Additional reports received here said that Dr. Eckener had radioed he expected to pass over Bahia at 6 a. m. (5 a. m. E. D. T.). Bahia is about 475 miles from Pernambuco and these reports established the airship's speed at between 70 and 75 miles an hour and on schedule.

JURY DOOMS MOTHER FOR GIRL'S DEATH

State Charges Woman With Man Planned Death to Collect Legacy of Girl.

BY RALPH HUMBLE

COURTROOM, ERIE, Pa., May 24.—Mrs. Edna Deahunk Mumbulo early today was found guilty of second degree murder for the burning to death of her 11-year-old stepdaughter, Hilda.

The jury deliberated for ten hours before announcing their finding. Counsel for the woman immediately filed motion for a new trial.

Mrs. Mumbulo took the verdict calmly. She seemed almost disinterested as her attorney, William Carney, called for a poll of the eleven men and one woman comprising the jury.

The state had tried Mrs. Mumbulo on a first degree murder charge for the death of Hilda who was fatally burned when flaming gasoline was spattered over her while she lay asleep in her bed in the Mumbulo apartment here.

Her husband, Ralph Mumbulo, probably will go to trial on a murder charge in connection with his daughter's death in September.

Mumbulo and his wife were charged with having conspired to kill the girl. Mumbulo's daughter by his first marriage, in order to share in a $6,000 legacy left the girl by her mother.

The girl was killed last March. Mumbulo and Edna Deahunk were married one week later in Montrose, Pa.

The case went to the jury at 5:10 o'clock last evening and the verdict was returned at 3:30 o'clock this morning.

CRUSHED BY TRUCK HURT

Jack Webbe, 16, Mount St. Suffers Bruised Legs While At Work.

A ton truck loaded with four tons of gravel and cement passed over the legs of Jack Webbe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Webbe, 613 E. Mount-st. Friday and caused no other than severe bruises to his legs.

Webbe is employed by the A. W. Burns Construction Co. working south of town on the Scioto trail and was carrying a sack of cement in a stretch of loose dirt when a truck loaded with gravel and cement struck him and pinned him beneath the car, passing over his legs.

Fellow workmen at once gave him first aid and he was later brought to the medical office of Dr. G. W. Heffner, who said that neither leg was broken.

An X-ray picture was to be taken sometime Saturday to determine the extent of his injuries.

INSTALL LIGHTS AT COURT HOUSE

An additional improvement which will add much to the beauty of the court house is a set of new electric lights mounted on large posts which are now being installed in front of the building by the workmen of the Southern Ohio Electric Co.

MOORE AUTO RECOVERED

Packard Found In Pomeroy In Good Condition, Although Minus Tools.

The six cylinder Packard sedan belonging to A. C. Moore which was stolen from in front of his residence on W. Franklin street Tuesday, was recovered late Friday by sheriff's authorities at Pomeroy according to a telegram received by the local police department.

When found the car was in a good condition with the exception of a missing spotlight and all its tools.

The car is said to have been stolen by two escaped members of the Boy's Industrial School at Lancaster, however, these boys have not been found.

The boys sold the spotlight and tools to purchase gasoline, it is said.

When they arrived at Pomeroy they drove the car into a Cadillac garage and walked out. Workmen at the garage reported the car to the police department and it was finally identified by the sheriff who had been notified by local police of the theft.

MEMORIAL DAY AND PEACE

One of the slogans that appealed in the late world war was, "This is a war to end war." Those who ever engaged in war have the hope that the end of such human slaughter in war has been reached.

Baroness Von Suttner says, "We can never undo what has been done and we cannot stop what is going on; but we can help prepare a new order in which these things will never occur again."

William E. Channing said, "War

Effect of Ivy on Stucco

The bureau of standards says that ivy will not cause a stucco house to crack. It will, however, tend to prevent evaporation of the moisture from the walls after rainfall, with consequent possible dampness in the house. The tendrils of the ivy may bore into the stucco and may cause disintegration at these points, provided the stucco is not of good quality.

"Roads" and "Streets"

The English word "road" probably comes from the old English "træd," compounded from a verb meaning to ride a horse, while our word "street" comes from the Latin "strata," a paved way, one of those streets of beautifully matched stones which the modern traveler may still see with the ruins made by the chariot wheels of the vanished civilizations in Pompeii and Herculaneum. New York Times.

Famous Scottish Regiment

The tartan of the Black Watch is entirely military. In 1725, when General Wade was sent to Scotland to pacify the Highlanders, he gave orders that the six companies in existence adopt a uniform tartan. This was of a dark color and gave rise to the name of the Black Watch. In 1739 these six companies were formed into a regiment, and the history of the Black Watch began.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

The one point in this parable is that of preparation for the future, and we must be careful not to present it too far and too literally at every point. In a general way, the bridegroom presents Christ, the bride his church. Those that go out to meet the bridegroom are professing Christians, true and false, and the second coming of the bridegroom is any coming of Christ into our lives, running on and culminating into the final coming.

V. 1. "Then shall the kingdom of heaven be likened unto ten virgins, who took their lamps and went forth to meet the bridegroom." The kingdom of heaven is to be compared in some of its aspects to the experience of the ten maidens of this parable—the working out on earth of the heavenly principles embodied in Christ, the reign of God in the world.

Vs. 2, 3. "And five of them were foolish and five were wise. For the foolish when they took their lamps took no oil with them." The five foolish had the appearance of being just as good as the five wise virgins; they were simply happy-go-lucky folk, making no preparation for an emergency.

V. 4. "But the wise took oil in their vessels with their lamps." Devotion to the bridegroom was the motive that inspired their wisdom and prompted them to make thorough preparation that in all things they might please him. By Bible reading, by devout meditation, by private and public worship and by holy living, one may so build up a Christian character as to be always ready for the coming of the great Judge and Saviour.

V. 5. "Now while the bridegroom tarried, they all slumbered and slept." There was no sin in resting and sleeping at the hour for rest and sleep, provided the responsibilities of life had been properly met.

V. 6. "But at midnight there is a cry, Behold the Bridegroom! Come ye forth to meet him." Christ comes at midnight when he is not expected. He comes in the great crisis of life. He comes to all at death. He comes at times of national testing such as war. He comes to the church in her sore trials and persecutions. He will come finally at the end of the world.

V. 7. "Then all those virgins arose and trimmed their lamps." The Wick had become charred and needed to be cut to a fresh place; all was in confusion; here is the setting for the test of character. A man has only as much religion as he can command in trial.

V. 8. "And the foolish said unto the wise, Give us your oil; for our lamps are going out." It is distressing when all hope vanishes. Christian virtues cannot be shared; they are individual possessions.

V. 9. "But the wise answered saying, 'Peradventure there will not be enough for us and you; go ye rather to them that sell and buy for yourselves.' There are times when the eleventh hour repentance will not work, for characters hardened by carelessness.

and indifference seldom attain to repentance.

V. 10. "And while they went away to buy, the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went with him to the marriage feast; and the door was shut." The saddest thing that can happen to any one is to have lost all opportunities, facing forever the "shut door."

V. 11. "Afterward came also the other virgins, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us." There may be a time when it is too late to even pray.

Vs. 12, 13. "But he answered and said, Verily I say unto you, I know you not. Watch therefore, for ye know not the day, nor the hour." To really watch is to know the right thing and do it. It is action that is needed as well as knowledge.

The crusade of brotherhood is the most prophetic movement of the modern world.

Mankind can prosper only by labor, wealth, justice, and liberty. War stops labor, swallows up wealth, tramples upon justice and liberty.

As peace lovers, we are charged with the sanctity of human life; as democrats and freemen we are charged with its sovereignty.

There is as much heroism on the mission field as on the battlefield.

C. C. OF A. AND DOGGY WARD'S TANGLE IN INTERESTING TILT

The C. C. of A. and Doggy Ward's recreation ball teams tangled in one of the most interesting contests of the current league schedule Friday evening at Utilites, and with the largest crowd of the season on hand, the Ward-men managed to eke out a 5 to 3 victory. The strawboard aggregation showed by far the greatest strength they have exhibited this year and just one hit in several tight places might have won the game for them.

But that one hit was not forthcoming for one Jaggy Davis, was on the mound for the Ward-men and that high school youth handed out only two safe hits during the fray, one going to W. Brungs and the other to Thomas. It wasn't Davis' fault anytime a runner was on base. His teammates had nine errors behind him, Gelb with three, Hutchinson with two, Frank Davis with two, and Wilson and the pitcher himself with one.

The Ward's started nicely and in the first inning scored 2 runs, one of which the C. C. of A. cancelled in their part of the first. The strawboard took the lead in the fourth inning by scoring two runs.

HARRY HARTZ RETURNS TO INDIANAPOLIS

Champion Who Was Injured
In 1927 Enthusiastic Over
Return To Track.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Harry Hartz, one of three American speedway champions who will compete in the 500-mile race for $100,000 at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Decoration Day, who has not ridden a race since the fall of 1927 when as running champion he suffered an accident which sent him to the hospital for a year, is enthusiastic over his return to the track.

"Gee, it feels just like old times," he beamed as he rolled into the pits after his first ride in the eight cylinder, front wheel, too seater Miller Special he will drive in the race. "I felt right at home. I was afraid maybe the long layoff might have shaken the nerves. But those corners don't look any sharper now than they used to."

Hartz, a youthful veteran at thirty-three, has been second three times and fourth twice in six starts at Indianapolis. Champion in 1926 he will be riding this year against two, two time champions—Louis Meyer, 1928 and 29 champion and 500-mile race winner in 1928 and Peter DePaolo, 1925 and 1927 champion and 1925 Indianapolis race winner. He is a figure in any race which he enters.

It was in a race at Salem that Hartz was injured. Riding fast in second place to the late Frank Lockhart, Hartz attempted to avoid Leon Durray's mount which took a wide slide upwards on the board track. Caught sideways of the track, Hartz was nicked by Peter De Paolo who could not drive out of his way.

The car turned over three times—throwing Hartz fifty feet, the last time over and when he regained consciousness was sitting beside the track asking his mechanic, Riley Brett, "what happened?" Hospital investigation developed a broken right leg and a hide full of splinters.

"But the mechanics who lined up the break didn't use exacting racing specifications and it was out of line a couple thousands of an inch," relates Hartz, "and that is what caused all the trouble."

Racing visages declared that a year in the hospital, with plenty of time for meditation, would place Hartz on the sidelines forever or that if he did attempt to drive, his nerve would fail him.

But again the talkative track-side spokesmen are wrong. "If I didn't feel that I could give the car a good ride, I'd turn it over to somebody who could," remarks Hartz seriously, after his first ride around the track. "This race car has to pay those hospital bills, you know. And if I feel that I can't drive it into the money, I want somebody on it who will."

Hartz came here many years ago riding as mechanic for Eddie Hearne. He later taught Harlan Fongler the tricks of speed, when Fongler was his riding mate. Subsequently Fongler brought Tony Gulotta, another driver in the race, to the track.

The Ward's tied it again in the fifth with a lone marker and scored in each the seventh and ninth to end hostilities.

Wards scored nine hits off Wolfe, straw-board pitcher, with Hutchinson continuing his heavy hitting with three blows including a double, and Butler and Gelb each hitting safely twice.

The game, from an officiating standpoint, was about the best of spoiled the play. Not an argument spoiled the play. Bill Merriman and Sherd Boyer alternated behind the plate and on the bases.

NEW RULES TO BE IN EFFECT AT MASON'S MONDAY EVENING

The recreation league tilts at Mason's field Monday evening between the league-leading Coca Colas and Doggy Ward's team will be run in true big league style, according to plans of league moguls and W. H. Mason, owner of the field.

All spectators will be forced to sit in either the grandstand or the bleachers or anywhere else behind the fence that surrounds the playing field. All players, with the exception of the man at bat, the next man at bat and a coach at each base, must remain in the dug-out and not crowd the base-lines.

Mr. Mason reports that children and even grown-ups have been riding around on the top of the players dugouts, that the fences have been broken down and that other damage has been done by violation of this rule.

He threatens to revoke permission to use the field if these rules are not followed.

In practically every game this year, catchers and infielders have

Solar Surgery
From the earliest time sunlight has been considered an important aid in the preservation of health. The ancient Greeks and Romans exposed their naked bodies to the sun in the open air to recruit mental and physical energy. Exposure to the sun's rays was also adopted by the physicians of those times as a remedy for many ailments, "especially dropsy, inflammation of the kidneys and paralysis."

Modern Observation
Modern poets appear rather to tense their words into a fury, than to infuse them with the deliberate beats of their matured conception, and strive to replace the rapture of the mind with a fervid intensity of phrase.—James Russell Lowell.

Neat "Comeback"
It is a rule in Britain's house of commons that members must be addressed as "honorable members." A certain M. P. who was called to order for addressing the house incorrectly got out of it by saying, "I much regret that I called you gentlemen."

Gathering Life's Joy
The joy of life comes in its by-products. The man seeking fame is a sorry man, if his eyes are so closely on his objective that he cannot see the things by the way-side. The miles we walk or ride are avenues of adventure if we have the wit to see it.

However, he said, that he has not always been baldheaded. C. C. OF A. AND DOGGY WARD'S TANGLE IN INTERESTING TILT

The C. C. of A. and Doggy Ward's recreation ball teams tangled in one of the most interesting contests of the current league schedule Friday evening at Utilities, and with the largest crowd of the season on hand, the Ward-men managed to eke out a 5 to 3 victory. The strawboard aggregation showed by far the greatest strength they have exhibited this year and just one hit in several tight places might have won the game for them.

But that one hit was not forthcoming for one Jaggy Davis, was on the mound for the Ward-men and that high school youth handed out only two safe hits during the fray, one going to W. Brungs and the other to Thomas. It wasn't Davis' fault anytime a runner was on base. His teammates had nine errors behind him, Geib with three, Hutchinson with two, Frank Davis with two, and Wilson and the pitcher himself with one.

The Ward's started nicely and in the first inning scored 2 runs, one of which the C. C. of A. cancelled in their part of the first. The straw-board took the lead in the fourth inning by scoring two runs.

The Ward's tied it again in the fifth with a lone marker and scored in each the seventh and ninth to end hostilities.

Wards scored nine hits off Wolfe, straw-board pitcher, with Hutchinson continuing his heavy hitting with three blows including a double, and Butler and Geib each hitting safely twice.

The game, from an officiating standpoint, was about the best of spoiled the play. Not an argument spoiled the play. Bill Merriman and Sherd Boyer alternated behind the plate and on the bases.

In practically every game this year, catchers and infielders have been seriously handicapped by a crowd being right against the base line preventing any attempt at catching foul balls. Base-punners have even been prevented from advancing by the tactics of the crowd which have lined the bases.

In the good interest of the recreation league, it is hoped the crowd which is expected at the game will obey these rules.

RULES FOR PEDESTRIANS
Just before Police Commissioner Whalen of New York stepped down and out—or maybe it was up and out—he announced this traffic code for pedestrians:

1. That pedestrians shall not cross any roadway except at crosswalks.
2. That pedestrians shall not cross the roadway against traffic signals. Pedestrians who have started to cross in accordance with this regulation shall have the right of way until they reach the opposite curb.
3. Pedestrians shall have the right of way on crossings. Vehicles must stop, if necessary, to permit them to pass.
4. The same penalties for light cranking will be imposed on pedestrians as upon automobile drivers.

It sounds fair. Rightly observed by motorists, it would give pedestrians a square deal that they usually get. Rightly observed by the pedestrians themselves, it would help much to get them a square deal.

It is observable that when pedestrians obey traffic signs as drivers are obliged to obey them, not crossing against lights and not crossing except at crossings, drivers grow more respectful of the pedestrians' rights and safety. When pedestrians straggle across the street any old way, impeding motor traffic, drivers grow careless and cynical about them, and seek whatever advantage they can grab.

FLOODS OF SECURITIES
Many people have wondered why bonds failed to go higher in a time when stocks were rather discredited and investors might naturally be expected to turn to more secure investments.

An answer is probably found in the statement that $2,000,000,000 of new bond issues were dumped on the market in the first four months of this year. The bond market had started up, and it was held up moderately well all along. But just as soon as general bonds began rising, showing that the public appreciates their value, a lot of corporations, old and new, take advantage of the situation to issue another flood.

The same thing happens with other securities. Whenever the stock market strengthens, there come new issues of common to bid for the investor's money and hold down the general level. Even American speculators can't buy everything.

ANCIENT MAN IN AMERICA
Have found in one of the Gypsum Cave's rooms a camp fire of our sloth hunters, a patch of real charcoal under layer of broken strata. (Of the Pleistocene era), in the topmost of which are found basket-maker and early Pueblo artifacts. This find establishes association of man and sloth beyond question.

That is part of a message sent to the director of the Southwest Museum by archeologists working near Las Vegas, Nev. It is regarded as the first conclusive proof that "men of high intelligence lived here 20,000 and perhaps 30,000 or more years ago, instead of less than 10,000 years as formerly believed."

So the New World grows rapidly older, as newly acquired knowledge of ancient things discloses facts about the lives of prehistoric men.

Who built that camp fire 20,000 and more years ago? Who will unearth records of today's civilization 20,000 years hence? Archeology is a fascinating game which makes its players thrill at their victories, but shrinks a little the self-importance of awed bystanders.

GOVERNMENT FUNDS
Federal aid for colleges is proposed in a bill recently introduced by Congressman Haugen, chairman of the House committee on agriculture. His purpose is the promotion of engineering research rather than general culture. He would have the government give for this purpose, to every eligible college, a sum starting at $10,000 and running up soon to $25,000 a year; every dollar to be matched by three dollars from the states benefited.

"Paying the necessary expenses of conducting investigations and experiments by the engineering experiment stations bearing directly on the development of engineering principles and technique in relation to agriculture and the mechanic arts, including transportation; on the introduction of engineering procedure and management; on the utilization of power; resources; on the development and application of machinery and equipment in economizing production; on engineering features of production, sanitation and public resources, domain and safety; and such other investigations as relate to the establishment and maintenance of homes."

This would mark an entirely new policy. It may come some time. Its acceptability at present is doubtful.

It may be argued that the government might as well subsidize engineering progress as public schools. But the government is getting into a good many things, some of which may not be necessary. To most citizens it seems as if state funds and private philanthropy are doing pretty well by the colleges, engineering as well as cultural, and it is primarily their job.

"SHEIK'S WIFE"

BY WINIFRED VAN DUZER

CHAPTER XLII.
SHE posed every day and sat up far into the night to finish her writing. Ken would sit smoking over the evening paper, finally plod yawningly off to bed while she finished the dishes and put the house to rights, her arms aching with weariness, feet like lead.

She grew rather thin and slept badly, and because her nerves were frayed, smiled too much. Yet there seemed to be no way she could save herself. A maid would have been in the way about the bungalow and after all there was very little work to be done. Only after the hours of posing and the hurried, anxious hours of writing that little work was hers.

The Revelations came out in book form the first of September and Eve hardly could contain herself for pride. Everybody asking her to autograph copies—reviews in all the newspapers, even magazines. Good reviews for the most part. "Fluffy but entertaining," one reviewer said. Another could not withhold a good-natured laugh. "We suggest renaming it," he wrote, "Revelations of a Sheik's Wife."

Eve tore out that page, put it in the grate and touched a match to it. Sheik's wife! To think of such a thing in connection with Ken!

She destroyed the page, tried to destroy the memory of it. But she could not forget entirely. Sometimes they drove into the city for dinner and the theatre, upon rare occasions they went to a night club. And, seeing Ken so tall and handsome, rather flushed, rather reckless after one too many cocktails with girls smiling at him, making pointed efforts to win his attention—how many girls knew Ken!—it would come back to her like a sly whisper, "Sheik's wife."

And then she would squirm under a sense of outrage, tell herself fiercely, "Don't be a fool!"

But a sneaking little wish would suggest itself. If Ken were not so attractive, if he were homely like Jimmy Stewart, uninteresting—if he were not an artist.

The Revelations ran into a second edition. Stonywall was all paid for now. Eve owned it back, stock and barrel. It was her home and yet not her home since the most stolen in and out, visit the old house surreptitiously. A dozen times she had been on the point of telling Ken all about it, point upon each occasion the words had died before they were spoken. She feared his anger, but more than this she feared the stiff formality which seemed to be the expression of his displeasure and which separated them when Ken reared it between them as no time, no distance might have done.

Out of her abandoned funds Eve ventured to pay one of two or three gold bills which Ken, dapper in his high-backed decorations, never vetted. The receipts came back addressed to him and, contrary to his usual custom, he opened the envelopes. The result was white-lipped though silent fury which sent him tramping the hills for two days and gave way only after Eve, with tearful apologies, had allowed him to refund what she had paid.

After this she began spending on Stonywall, employing a contractor at Novel City in order to keep her secret, she had the old house fixed up, even to the putting in of hardwood floors. A fashionable decorator came up from New York and painted woodwork creamy white and papered the walls in authentic Colonial pattern. Eve had a crane forged for the great fireplace and a big iron pot brought from the cellar to hang on the crane. And now and then in some mountain farmhouse she found a neglected and despised antique and bought it for her house.

Once when Ken and she were spending Sunday with the Stonywall Mary spoke about Stonywall. "Somebody's bought the old farm, Eve. Too bad. Always hoped you'd move over."

Ken grinned. "Have a heart" did you know I meant those goofy sketches for 'Artistry.' I'm? Turned 'em in for me like the lamb that you are. How did you know?"

"Why, Ken—?" She could hardly speak, staring at the magazine, at him. "Did you mean them to be used this way? I—thought—"

"Certainly I did," he cried with a gay, jaunty air. "And you knew it! That's the kind of wife to have—say, it's great, Eve, our understanding each other this way—"

"Yes," she said. "Yes, Ken dear." And, to herself, "The darn big kid—big, fibbing kid—"

The last week in September two things happened which stirred the tribe. An army of workmen ap-

Eve sat up far into the night to finish her writing.

Poor folks we are—can't get around buying farms!"

But Eve looked down, hot and apprehensive. Ken was nagging all the hills now, writing checks crumpled, mailing them. If he did this in a representative, he would have a way which he wanted to ignore. A year ago, when he had come out of the mood, but she would not let it go. Only reasonable that she should be paid—only fair to her. Let him call it if he wanted to. She had a copy of the Revelations in her arm, glowing with the full of the acclaim. She had a new development in her work.

"Chere, sweet—Great little kid—wonderful—"

"Yes," he said, "I'm proud of you." He swept her up, kissing her, laughing. How appeared in The Lane and moved upon Hilltop House, setting out in a thorough, determined way to put the place in readiness for occupancy.

And Jan, with her homely face flushed and smiling as a school girl's, went around inviting everybody to a wedding celebration. She had a new post now, a better one than that from which charges of moral turpitude had separated her. The morning after her contract was signed, she and Clay had gone into Haverford and been married by a justice there and now they had to hold whoever else the newly formed status of their association.

It was an odd crowd which gathered for this party. There were artists, a university folk, a few of the triumphant—but, for the most part, they were all young, bright, and full of life. They were all looking at her with a producer, who were in the room.

The producer was Sam Davis and he asked to be introduced to Eve. "Listen," he said to her in a hushed voice, "where can I talk to you?"

Theatres
AT THE CLIFTONA
Dennis King, who for the past two or three years has been rated by the critics as the greatest singing star of the Broadway musical comedy stage, will be seen and heard for the first time by the movie audiences at the Cliftona Theatre when "The Vagabond King" comes there on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

"The Vagabond King" was the vehicle for Dennis King's greatest singing achievement. It had a seasonally long run of more than a full season's duration in New York and made an impressive tour in other cities afterward.

King's rise to fame was meteoric. As a lad he was fascinated by the stage. His first big parts were with John Drinkwater's repertory theatre in Birmingham, England. He came to the United States in the English company of "Monsieur Beaucaire" after he was wounded in service in the British Expeditionary forces.

Later he played in Jane Cowie's New York company of "Romeo and Juliet," achieving great fame in role of Mercutio.

His friends persuaded him to develop his singing voice, and this brought him an engagement in Rose Marie, which established him as a leader in romantic singing roles. Then came the sensational and glamorous "The Vagabond King."

The music for "The Vagabond King" was written by Rudolph Friml, whose long and successful career as a composer began in 1912 with "The Firefly." Other musical comedies and operettas which he has written music for are "Katinka," "Sometime," "Rose Marie," and "The Three Musketeers." The thrilling Friml songs of the original production have been carried to the all-talking screen in Paramount's gorgeous all-color version of "The Vagabond King."

AT THE METROPOLITAN
The vast estate of the Flint-ridge, Cal. Riding Club, with its modern paddocks, grand stand, polo grounds, steeple chase park and attendant structures, forms just one of the many pictorial beautiful backgrounds of "Hello Sister," the James Cruze, Inc. current talking picture, starring Olive Borden with Lloyd Hughes, which comes to the Metropolitan Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

This exclusive club and grounds were loaned to Director Walter Lang after a special meeting of a board of directors whose fortunes total nearly one hundred million dollars.

A number of debts and members of the club, with their mothers, were glad of the chance opportunity of appearing in a talking picture, they said, but refrained from "signing the payroll" when Cashier William H. Pond of the Cruze concern came around with daily "extra" checks.

"Hello Sister" is a whoop-la sort of a story following the trail of today's youth in their pursuit of pleasure. Olive Borden just fits the role assigned her and Lloyd Hughes is said to never have had a better part.

It is packed with hilarious doings of the younger set and was written and prepared by persons who really know what the young folks of today are doing—which is plenty.

DR. COPELAND SAYS—
That Bugbear Indigestion
Takes Much of the Joy Out of Life
—Says Dr. Copeland—
But Most Likely You're Not as Badly Off as You Think
—Right Eating and Living Work Wonders in Correcting Digestive Troubles.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

INDIGESTION is the bugbear of thousands of persons. They would do almost anything to be restored to good health.

There are many varieties of indigestion or dyspepsia. What is called "acidity" is perhaps the commonest of all. It comes at any age and may last only a few days or it may persist for months. Sometimes it ends in ulcer of the stomach or something worse. That is serious. But the reason for avoiding this condition.

There are three symptoms always present in ulcer of the stomach. They are pain, vomiting and hemorrhage; pain is the chief sign of this trouble. Heartburn and constipation, blood mingled with the vomited food, severe pain in the middle of the back and stomach, may indicate ulcer.

Rest is the first remedy for this condition. The patient must have special feeding, but the physician's attendance will see to this. He must direct the treatment.

One of the common causes of indigestion is taking food which is heating it properly. Whole pieces of meat and other food are too commonly swallowed without chewing. You are bound to have disturbances in stomach and bowels after such a performance.

Digestion begins in the mouth. For this reason thorough mastication of the food and free mixture with the saliva are necessary to good digestion.

If you properly chew your food, and then have pain in the stomach and belching of gas, that might mean the indigestion is caused by an insufficient quantity or a poor quality of gastric juice.

There may be deficient muscular power in the stomach. This will present an important factor in digestion. This leads to a very common form of indigestion. Sometimes the food is only partly digested. Fermentation and decomposition of food in the stomach result.

These are means of preventing these digestive troubles. But every season of cure calls for a drastic change in the diet as well as in the nature and living habits.

It is important to have properly balanced meals. Eat sparingly—not too much sugar and starches. Eat easily digested foods and chew them thoroughly. To this end good teeth are essential.

Drink lots of water, and bear in mind that this is a most important part of the treatment. It is only when a proper amount of water is maintained in the system that perfect elimination of the wastes of the body is possible.

Don't keep the hands busily occupied when the stomach and intestines are hard at work. Be relaxed, light-hearted and cheerful. If you are depressed and despondent, other things follow. If the nervous balance is disturbed, or if the emotions are aroused over every little thing, digestion is almost entirely stopped.

Change your attitude of mind. Change your environment. See a boy or cheerful friends. And change your diet.

See your doctor. The chances are that you are not so badly off as you thought you were, but find out for sure. A good test and a pleasant vacation can do wonders for you. To them.

RULES FOR PEDESTRIANS
Just before Police Commissioner Whalen of New York stepped down and out—or maybe it was up and out—he announced this traffic code for pedestrians:
1. That pedestrians shall not cross any roadway except at crosswalks.
2. That pedestrians shall not cross the roadway against traffic signals. Pedestrians who have started to cross in accordance with this regulation shall have the right of way until they reach the opposite curb.
3. Pedestrians shall have the right of way on crossings. Vehicles must stop, if necessary, to permit them to pass.
4. The same penalties for light crashing will be imposed on pedestrians as upon automobile drivers.
It sounds fair. Rightly observed by motorists, it would give pedestrians a squarer deal than they usually get. Rightly observed by the pedestrians themselves, it would help much to get them a square deal.
It is observable that when pedestrians obey traffic signs as drivers are obliged to obey them, not crossing against lights and not crossing except at crossings, drivers grow more respectful of the pedestrians' rights and safety. When pedestrians struggle across the street any old way, impeding motor traffic, drivers grow careless and cynical about them, and seek whatever advantage they can grab.

FLOODS OF SECURITIES
Many people have wondered why bonds failed to go higher in a time when stocks were rather discredited and investors might naturally be expected to turn to more secure investments.
An answer is probably found in the statement that $2,000,000,000 of new bond issues were dumped on the market in the first four months of this year. The bond market had started up, and it has held up moderately well all along. But just as soon as general bonds begin rising, showing that the public appreciates their value, a lot of corporations, old and new, take advantage of the situation to issue another flood.
The same thing happens with other securities. Whenever the stock market strengthens, there come new issues of common to bid for the investor's money and hold down the general level. Even American speculators can't buy everything.

The morning after her contract was signed, she and Clay had gone into Haverford and been married by a justice there and now they wished to hold whoopee over the newly formed status of their association.
It was an odd crowd which gathered for this purpose—writers artists, newspaper folk—friends of the triumphant bride; hoofers singers, tin pan alley plugs, publicity agents, booking agents, even a producer, who were friends of the groom.
The producer was Sam Marks and he asked to be introduced to Eve. "Listen," he said to her in a hushed voice, "Where can we go to talk? Out of this mob—" ures of production, sanitation and public resources, domain and safety, and such other investigations as relate to the establishment and maintenance of homes." This would mark an entirely new policy. It may come some time. Its acceptability at present is doubtful.

It may be argued that the government might as well subsidize engineering progress as public roads. But the government is getting into a good many things, some of which may not be necessary. To most citizens, it seems as if state funds and private philanthropy are doing pretty well by the colleges, engineering as well as cultural, and it is primarily their job.

Eve sat up far into the night to finish her writing.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA
Dennis King, who for the past two or three years has been rated by the critics as the greatest singing star of the Broadway musical comedy stage, will be seen and heard for the first time by the movie audiences at the Cliftona Theatre when "The Vagabond King" comes there on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.
"The Vagabond King" was the vehicle for Dennis King's greatest singing achievement. It had a sensationally long run of more than a full season's duration in New York and made an impressive tour in other cities afterward.
King's rise to fame was meteoric. As a lad he was fascinated by the stage. His first bit parts were with John Drinkwater's repertory theatre in Birmingham, England. He came to the United States in the English company of "Monsieur Beaucaire" after he was wounded in service in the British Expeditionary forces.
Later he played in Jane Cowell's New York company of "Romeo and Juliet," achieving great fame in role of Mercutio.
His friends persuaded him to develop his singing voice, and this brought him an engagement in Rose Marie, which established him as a leader in romantic singing roles. Then came the sensational and glamorous "The Vagabond King."
The music for "The Vagabond King" was written by Rudolph Friml, whose long and successful career as a composer began in 1912 with "The Firefly." Other musical comedies and operettas which he has written music for are "Katinka," "Sometime," "Rose Marie," and "The Three Musketeers." The thrilling Friml songs of the original production have been carried to the all-talking screen in Paramount's gorgeous all-color version of "The Vagabond King."

AT THE METROPOLITAN
The vast estate of the Flint-ridge, Cal., Riding Club, with its modern paddocks, grand stand, polo grounds, steeple chase park and attendant structures, forms just one of the many pictorial beautiful backgrounds of "Hello Sister," the James Cruze, Inc., current talking picture, starring Olive Borden with Lloyd Hughes, which comes to the Metropolitan Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.
This exclusive club and grounds were loaned to Director Walter Lang after a special meeting of a board of directors whose fortunes total nearly one hundred million dollars.
A number of debts and members of the club, with their mothers, were glad of the chance opportunity of appearing in a talking picture, they said, but refrained from "signing the payroll" when Cashier William H. Pond of the Cruise concern came around with daily "extra" checks.
"Hello Sister" is a whoop-la sort of a story following the trail of today's youth in their pursuit of pleasure. Olive Borden just fits the role assigned her and Lloyd Hughes is said to never have had a better part.
It is packed with hilarious doings of the younger set and was written and prepared by persons who really know what the young folks of today are doing—which is plenty.

AT THE GRAND
Is it always hopeless when a girl lavishes all her love on one man and receives none in return? Custom decrees that a woman shall be the pursued one. In view of this should she retire and suffer in silence or fight with all her feminine wiles for the possession of the one she feels to be her man?
This situation forms the basis of the story of "She Couldn't Say No," the Warner Bros. and Vitaphon production starring Winnie Lightner and Chester Morris, which is coming to the Grand Theatre next Sunday and Monday.
The famous Winnie is shown as an entertainer in a night club, desperately in love with Jerry, the former racketeer who has become her manager. But Jerry (played by Chester Morris) is decidedly not interested.
Winnie tells Jerry of her great love for him and begs to give up

DR. COPELAND SAYS—

That Bugbear Indigestion
Takes Much of the Joy Out of Life
—Says Dr. Copeland—
But Most Likely You're Not as Badly Off as You Think—
—Right Eating and Living Work Wonders in Correcting Digestive Troubles.
By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

INDIGESTION is the bugbear of thousands of persons. They would do almost anything to be restored to good health.
There are many varieties of indigestion or dyspepsia. What is called "acidity" is perhaps the commonest of all. It comes at any age and may last only a few days or it may persist for months. Sometimes it ends in ulcer of the stomach or something worse. That is sad and a caution for avoiding this condition.
There are three symptoms always present in ulcer of the stomach. They are pain, vomiting and hemorrhage; pain is the chief sign of this trouble. Heartburn and constipation, blood mingled with the vomited food, severe pain in the middle of the back and stomach, may indicate ulcer.
Rest is the first remedy for this condition. The patient must have special feeding, but the physician in attendance will see to this. He must direct the treatment.
One of the common causes of indigestion is taking food without chewing it properly. Whole pieces of meat and other food are too commonly swallowed without chewing. You are bound to have disturbances in stomach and bowels after such a performance.
Digestion begins in the mouth. For this reason thorough mastication of the food and free mixture with the saliva are necessary to good digestion.
If you properly chew your food, and then have pain in the stomach and belching of gas, that might mean indigestion is caused by an insufficient quantity or a poor quality of gastric juice.
There may be deficient muscular power in the stomach. This will present an important factor in digestion. This leads to a very common form of indigestion. Sometimes the food is only partly digested. Fermentation and decomposition of food in the stomach result.
There are means of preventing these digestive troubles. But every system of care calls for a drastic change in the diet as well as in the nature and living habits.

the society girl who, Winnie feels, is interested in him merely because he is entirely different from the men she has been accustomed to meeting.
He insists upon proclaiming his love for the other girl, and Winnie, after a futile fight, leaves the city broken-hearted. Months later Jerry's eyes are opened but it is too late.
"She Couldn't Say No" is not just a song and dance film. It is filled with absorbing drama. The supporting cast includes Sally Eilers, Johnny Arthur and Tully Marshall. Lloyd Bacon directed and the screen play was written by Robert Lord and Arthur Caesar. It is an adaptation of Benjamin M. Kaye's play of the same name.

The Bed in History

Generally speaking, the biggest beds were made in England during the Elizabethan period, when carved oak was favored, and some of the structures were immense. In France and Italy, walnut was the preferred material until the empire period, when mahogany beds came into use. Iron beds were first used in the eighteenth century.

SOCIETY

PARTY MONDAY IN COLUMBUS
Guests from Circleville have been invited to a dinner party in Columbus Monday night. Hostesses will be Mrs. John McKinnon and Mrs. Everett Lump, both former residents of Circleville. The party at 6:30 o'clock will be given at the home of Mrs. McKinnon.

PARTY GIVEN FOR ELLABETH ROTH
The presence of Miss Elizabeth Roth, fete guest, and a number of out-of-town visitors augmented the pleasures of the dinner-bridge Friday night, with which Miss Alice Ada May entertained at her home on N. Scioto-st., at six-thirty o'clock.
Decorative appointments on the tables were pink and white, and throughout each room, pink and white roses and peonies were used in profusion. On the tables, dainty old-fashioned pink, bodded from bud vases. The tallies and bridge accessories were also of these two colors, and designed for a bride's party.
Mrs. Tom Renick, made high score, Miss Mary Radcliffe low score, and Miss Roth was presented a complimentary prize.
Included among the out of town guests were Miss Helen and Miss Jean McAlpine of Bellefontaine.

DON'T BE A SLAVE TO LAXATIVES

Mrs. E. Gebbard, 301 W. 5th St., Newport, Ky., says, "My husband and I were actually slaves to laxatives, continually dosing ourselves with something to relieve constipation. Just couldn't stop. It got to be a habit. We even gave our children laxatives in candy form. Little did we realize that we were only aggravating and not reaching the cause of the constipation. Headaches, biliousness, indigestion and constipation still continued.
Our druggist recommended Carter's Little Liver Pills. He said these little vegetable pills would tone up the liver, stir up the bile, acting as an antiseptic, keeps the food from rotting, and poisoning the blood. They are not habit forming and thoroughly cleanse the upper and lower bowel. Laxatives fail to do this."
Carter's Little Liver Pills are sold at all Druggists in 25c red paper pkgs.

Wonderful Natural Bridge

Rainbow Bridge is unique in that it is not only symmetrical underneath, the arch but it is also curved on the surface, carrying out roughly the rainbow, for which it is named. This bridge is situated a little north of the Arizona line in Utah on the Flute Indian reservation.

DON'T BE A SLAVE TO LAXATIVES

Mrs. E. Gebbard, 301 W. 5th St., Newport, Ky., says, "My husband and I were actually slaves to laxatives, continually dosing ourselves with something to relieve constipation. Just couldn't stop. It got to be a habit. We even gave our children laxatives in candy form. Little did we realize that we were only aggravating and not reaching the cause of the constipation. Headaches, biliousness, indigestion and constipation still continued.
Our druggist recommended Carter's Little Liver Pills. He said these little vegetable pills would tone up the liver, stir up the bile, acting as an antiseptic, keeps the food from rotting, and poisoning the blood. They are not habit forming and thoroughly cleanse the upper and lower bowel. Laxatives fail to do this."
Carter's Little Liver Pills are sold at all Druggists in 25c red paper pkgs.

MANY INTERESTING DISPLAYS
More than 500 friends and parents of Circleville school children attended night school and visited the various exhibits in the high school, seventh, and eighth grade, Thursday evening, May 22.
The purpose of the night school in showing the public the method in which children are taught was very well carried out by all teachers, as the visitors of the various classes attested.
The manual training, domestic science, art, upper and lower special education exhibits held in the gymnasium this year surpassed all others, as visitors expressed it, "All work exceeded their expectations."
HIGHER SPECIAL EDUCATION
The higher special education is nearing the close of another very successful year," was the statement of Miss Marie L. Hamilton, instructor of this class. This was proven at the exhibit which was held in the gymnasium Thursday eve.
The visitors commented favorably on the following hand made articles: woven rugs, hand painted scarfs, felt dress motifs, painted bulb pans, modernistic hand painted vases, cake covers, pillows, woven mats, book holders, card boxes, clay flower holders, candle sticks, flower pots, butterfly favors, letter openers, painted cookie pans, door stops, window pulls.
LOWER SPECIAL EDUCATION
One of the most interesting displays held in the gymnasium was made by the lower special education under the instruction of Miss Iris Fierce.
The following hand made articles were displayed: mail boxes, raphia and reed baskets, raphia baskets, woven reed baskets, raphia table mats, wall shelves, decorated bread boards and knives, wooden toys drawing a cart, wooden flower stands, clay modeling, crocheted covered foot stool, tea towels, aprons, embroidered pot holders, samples of drawing, modernistic vases and sand table on health project.
ENGLISH
Volunteers of the freshmen and junior English classes, for the past three weeks, have been making articles from soap, wood and plaster paris, and dressing dolls. Results of their fine work done out of school by ambitious students were highly praised by parents and night school visitors.
Dolls dressed in costume representing characters and pictures drawn of scenes and persons in Treasure Island, Tale of Two Cities, Ivanhoe, and Midsummer Night's Dream have been made outside of school hours by those freshmen and juniors interested in forming a visual education program in J. W. Fetherlin's English classes. These were found in the first floor corridor.
FRENCH PLAY
The second period French class, under the supervision of Miss Velma Watson, dramatized the play "De Didon Noel" (The Christmas Turkey) in three scenes, during the Thursday evening session of night school.
Grace Steele gave an English transaction of each of the three scenes before it was acted in French. Songs were sung in that language also.
SPECIAL BIOGRAPHICAL REPORTS
Special reports were given in Miss Watson's fourth period English class by the following pupils: Addison, by James Drum; Florence Nightingale, by Helen Shaw; Henry the Seventh, by Donald Wolf; and Mary, Queen of Scots, by Arthur Williams.
SOPHS HOLD PICNIC
A very enjoyable picnic was held by the sophomore class, at Dewey Park, Wednesday, May 21. The evening was spiced with dancing and playing games, while many of the boys took to the water.
The lunch consisted of potato chips, cookies, sandwiches and pop.
A GOOD PLACE TO EAT
One of the most interesting articles displayed at this exhibit was the "food house," which was made by the lower special education students.
The house was made of the following articles: graham crackers used to make up the roof, shredded wheat made the fences, and lettuce and radishes served as the flowers in the flower garden. The foundation was of prunes. The sides of the house were made of rolled oats. A milk bottle served as the chimney. Lettuce leaf curtains hung at the windows.
Miner Sets Record
Lucy Miner, beginner in typing, wrote at the rate of 58 words per minute in a 10 minute test Thursday, as recorded by V. D. Keeler, instructor.
This is the best record ever recorded in the typing department.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter Hiatt of Tarlton had for their guests Sunday, May 18th, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Neff and sons Carsons and Francis and daughter Ruth of Lewis Center, Ohio. Mrs. Neff is a daughter of Levi Imler, deceased, and a niece of Mrs. Hiatt.
As a surprise for the Neff family, a number of other guests were invited to the Hiatt home. Namely: Mr. Stanley Imler, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Imler, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Imler and son Ronald of Saltoreek Twp., Miss Ruby Kuhn of Tarlton, and Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Waites of Amanda.
DINNER FOR CHOIR FRIDAY EVENING
The choir at the Presbyterian church, growing into a large friendly group during their practices for the Easter music and the practices for the weekly services, enjoyed a dinner together Friday night at the church at 6:30 o'clock.
Miss Ethel Rife, president of the choir was chairman of the dinner, at which 40 were present. These guests were members of the choir with their husbands and wives.
Dinner was served at three long tables, with center and end bouquets in silver bowls, of daisies, forget-me-nots, lilies, iris and peonies. The tables were lighted by green and white candles. Miss Rife was assisted by Mrs. Frank Bennett, Mrs. Harry Heffner, and the vice-president, Mrs. Maude Foster.
Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Eagleson of Columbus, headed the list. Professor Eagleson is the director of the choir. Others present were the Rev. and Mrs. E. S. Toomsmeier, Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, accompanist, Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mrs. E. O. Crites, Miss Carrie Olds, Mr. and Mrs. Sennet Cryder, Mrs. Evan Reichelderfer, Miss Dorothy McArthur, Mrs. Frank Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heffner, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. Maude Foster, Miss Ruth Holman, Miss Peggy Courtright, Miss Mary May Haswell, Prof. and Mrs. J. O. Eagleson, Miss Ethel Rife, Mr. and Mrs. D. Adrian Yates, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Roth, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hammel, Dr. Harry D. Jackson, Pat Yates and Howard Greene.
TEA AT MARAMOR ON THURSDAY
Mrs. Allen Thornton, and Mrs. Fulton Cryder were out of town guests Thursday at two o'clock at a tea given at the Maramor in Columbus. Their hostesses Mrs. Joseph Stanton and Mrs. Beale Thomas are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Groom of S. Washington-st., Circleville.
GOOD ATTENDANCE AT GRANGE MEETING
A large attendance of 60 members, marked the meeting Friday night of the Washington Grange, at the Fifth birthday party of that organization this year. The meeting was held at the Washington-twp high school at 8:30 o'clock. D. C. Heffner is master of the grange.
Grange ritual opened the meeting, followed by everyone joining in singing "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean". A reading, "Some things We Should Know about the Flag" was given by Kenneth Wertman. Catherine Kraft sang a solo, and Robert Elsea gave a reception "No Red, without the White and the Blue."
America's creed, a reading was given by Dorothy Glick, followed by a recitation, "Makers of the Flag" by Jessie Bolender. Helen Westenhaver had another recitation, followed by Rosemary Brown with another.
The meeting closed with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner." Refreshments were served, in charge of Mrs. George Wertman, and Mrs. Edwin Leist. Mrs. L. M. Brown was in charge of the program.
Be sure to see the Window display of solid silver, Minuet pattern at Mader's Gift Store. 122-11.

The purpose of the night school in showing the public the method in which children are taught was very well carried out by all teachers, as the visitors of the various classes attested.

THE MANUAL TRAINING

Accouted as the largest and best exhibit of its kind ever presented to the public in Circleville high school the manual training exhibit drew many favorable comments at the night school, Thursday. The many pieces of handicraft work done in wood and metal were made by the manual training students in high school, higher special education, and seventh and eighth grades under the direction of C. F. Zaenglein.

The sophomores had on display such furniture as console chest, bookcase, writing desk, porch swing, and dining room table. Their progress was quite distinctive as could be noticed in the general beauty and stability of the furniture.

The eighth grade and higher special education displayed their talent in the making of furniture such as a hall tree, magazine rack, taboret, sewing cabinet, tool box, and fern stand.

One piece of handicraft which took much time and patience on the part of the maker, and one which attracted much attention was an Xylophone made by Edwin Haacker, senior.

METAL WORK
 In the metal work display were many articles made of tin, galvanized iron, copper, black iron, brass iron, and steel. Some of the most interesting articles were hand-hammered copper trays, garden trowels, tools, and kitchen utensils, all of which held the attention of the interested public. Each student was required to make 26 articles for the exhibit.

HOME ECONOMICS HAS FINE SHOW

The home economics exhibit was one of the biggest features of the evenings, Thursday and Friday, May 22 and 23. Many spectators while expressing their opinions in regard to the domestic science display judged it as one of the best ever held at C. H. S.

"Bigger and Better." This is what Miss G. L. Pigman, director of the domestic science department said in regard to the exhibit, which was held.

Various problems, which the different domestic science classes have made throughout the year were for display.

Juniors and seniors had for display: home management problems, including a home management book which consisted of an original house plan, house furnishings and budgets; art problems, undergarments and dresses.

Sophomores had for exhibit: dresses and undergarments. Freshmen also exhibited dresses and undergarments.

Eighth grade displayed: slips, shorts, dance sets, pajamas and dresses.

Seventh grade exhibited their cooking uniforms. Special education had for exhibition: tie-backs, undergarments, dresses and short coats.

The dining room which is a part of the home economics department was arranged for visitors both of the Wind Mills, or Holland. Those who helped in this display were Bernice Liston, Virginia Caskey, Eloise Hatzko, and Margie Merz.

James Reichelderfer, Tom Conrad, Doris Moffit, and Earnestine Eylar. "The last display is the Development of Transportation. These produced the following: first is the Covered Wagon by Tom Kirwin; second, Stage Coach, Bicycle, and Canal Boat by Gaylord Greenlee; third, a bicycle by Dale Reichelderfer."

HIGHER SPECIAL EDUCATION

"The higher special education is nearing the close of another very successful year," was the statement of Miss Marie L. Hamilton, instructor of this class. This was proven at the exhibit which was held in the gymnasium Thursday eve.

The following hand made articles were displayed: mail boxes, raphia and reed baskets, raphia baskets, woven reed baskets, raphia table mats, wall shelves, decorated bread boards and knives, wooden toys drawing a cart, wooden flower stands, clay modeling, cretonne covered foot stool, tea towels, aprons, embroidered pot holders, samples of drawing, modernistic vases and sand table on health project.

ENGLISH

Volunteers of the freshmen and junior English classes, for the past three weeks, have been making articles from soap, wood and plaster paris, and dressing dolls. Results of their fine work done out of school by ambitious students were highly praised by parents and night school visitors.

 Special reports were given in Miss Watson's fourth period English class by the following pupils: Addison, by James Drum; Florence Nightingale, by Helen Shaw; Henry the Seventh, by Donald Wolf; and Mary, Queen of Scots, by Arthur Williams.

SOPH. BAKE SALE HELD
 The sophomore class held a bake sale at the city building, this morning and afternoon. The proceeds will help pay expenses on next year's junior-senior banquet.

Those appointed to collect contributions from room 17 were Thelma Wilkins and Annabelle Arledge; from rooms 18-19, Ursula Chandler, Jean Fitzpatrick, and James Drum.

Juanita Hill, Marie Woodward, Dorothy L. Glick, Charles Plum, and Harold Dresbach had charge of the sale in the morning, with Dorothy L. Glick as chairman.

Nina Denman, Robert Griffith, Ethel Binkley and Lutz Ashbrook had charge in the afternoon with Alice Briggs as chairman.

Dudley Mills, Jack Chaffin, and Waldo Hilyard advertised the sale.

Two Absent
 The smallest absent list recorded this year was reported to the office Thursday, when only two absences were reported.

Miner Sets Record
 Lucy Miner, beginner in typing, wrote at the rate of 59 words per minute in a 10 minute test Thursday, as recorded by V. D. Keeler, instructor.

This is the best record ever recorded in the typing department.
